

Antony C. Sutton

From Wikipedia, the free encyclopedia

Antony Cyril Sutton (February 14, 1925 – June 17, 2002) was a British and American economist, historian, and writer.

Contents

- 1 Biography
- 2 Education
- 3 Employers
- 4 Bibliography
- 5 See also
- 6 References
- 7 External links

Biography

Sutton studied at the universities of London, Göttingen, and California and received his D.Sc. from the University of Southampton. He was an economics professor at California State University, Los Angeles and a research fellow at Stanford University's Hoover Institution from 1968 to 1973. During his time at the Hoover Institution, he wrote the major study Western Technology and Soviet Economic Development (in three volumes), arguing that the West played a major role in developing the Soviet Union from its very beginnings up until the present time (1970). Sutton argued that the Soviet Union's technological and manufacturing base, which was then engaged in supplying the Viet Cong, was built by United States corporations and largely funded by US taxpayers. Steel and iron plants, the GAZ automobile factory, a Ford subsidiary in eastern Russia, and many other Soviet industrial enterprises were built with the help or technical assistance of the United States or US corporations. He argued further that the Soviet Union's acquisition of MIRV technology was made possible by receiving (from US sources) machining equipment for the manufacture of precision ball bearings, necessary to mass-produce MIRV-enabled missiles.

In 1973, Sutton published a popularized, condensed version of the sections of the forthcoming third volume relevant to military technology called National Suicide: Military Aid to the Soviet Union after which he was forced out of the Hoover Institution.^[1] His conclusion from his research on the issue was that the conflicts of the Cold War were "not fought to restrain communism" since the United States, through financing the Soviet Union "directly or indirectly armed both sides in at least Korea and Vietnam" but the wars were organised in order "to generate multibillion-dollar armaments contracts."^[2]

The update to the text, The Best Enemy Money Can Buy, looked at the role of military technology transfers up to the 1980s.^[3] Appendix B of that text contained the text of his 1972 testimony before Subcommittee VII of the Platform Committee of the Republican Party in which he summarized the essential aspects of his overall research:

Antony C. Sutton

Born	Antony Cyril Sutton February 14, 1925 London, United Kingdom
Died	June 17, 2002 (aged 77) United States
Nationality	British and American
Ethnicity	English
Alma mater	University of Southampton, England
Subject	History, economics, politics

“ In a few words: there is no such thing as Soviet technology. Almost all — perhaps 90–95 percent — came directly or indirectly from the United States and its allies. In effect the United States and the NATO countries have built the Soviet Union. Its industrial and its military capabilities. This massive construction job has taken 50 years. Since the Revolution in 1917. It has been carried out through trade and the sale of plants, equipment and technical assistance.^[4] ”

Sutton's next three major published books (Wall Street and the Bolshevik Revolution, Wall Street and the Rise of Hitler and Wall Street and FDR) detailed Wall Street's involvement in the Bolshevik Revolution to destroy Russia as an economic competitor and turn it into "a captive market and a technical colony to be exploited by a few high-powered American financiers and the corporations under their control"^[5] as well as its decisive contributions to the rise of Adolf Hitler and Franklin Delano Roosevelt, whose policies he assessed as being essentially the same "corporate socialism," planned by the big corporations.^[6] Sutton concluded that it was all part of the economic power elites' "long-range program of nurturing collectivism"^[2] and fostering "corporate socialism" in order to ensure "monopoly acquisition of wealth" because it "would fade away if it were exposed to the activity of a free market."^[7]

In his view, the only solution to prevent such abuse in the future was that "a majority of individuals declares or acts as if it wants nothing from government, declares it will look after its own welfare and interests" or, specifically, if "a majority finds the moral courage and the internal fortitude to reject the something-for-nothing con game and replace it by voluntary associations, voluntary communes, or local rule and decentralized societies."^[2]

In Sutton's own words he was "persecuted but never prosecuted" for his research and subsequent publication of his findings.

In the early 1980s, Sutton used a combination of public-domain information on Skull and Bones (such as Yale yearbooks) and previously unreleased documents sent to him by Charlotte Thomson Iserbyt whose father was a Skull and Bones member^[8] to speculate that it had played an important role in coordinating the political and economic relationships underlying the historical events Sutton wrote of in his previous works. He published his speculations as America's Secret Establishment: An Introduction to the Order of Skull and Bones, which, according to Sutton, was his most important work.

In his book Between Two Ages: America's Role in the Technetronic Era (New York: Viking Press;1970), Zbigniew Brzezinski wrote:

For impressive evidence of Western participation in the early phase of Soviet economic growth, see Antony C. Sutton's Western Technology and Soviet Economic Development: 1917–1930, which argues that 'Soviet economic development for 1917–1930 was essentially dependent on Western technological aid' (p.283), and that 'at least 95 per cent of the industrial structure received this assistance.' (p. 348).

Professor Richard Pipes, of Harvard, said in his book, Survival Is Not Enough: Soviet Realities and America's Future (Simon & Schuster;1984):

In his three-volume detailed account of Soviet Purchases of Western Equipment and Technology ... Sutton comes to conclusions that are uncomfortable for many businessmen and economists. For this reason his work tends to be either dismissed out of hand as 'extreme' or, more often, simply ignored. (p. 290)

Education

D.Sc. degree, University of Southampton, England

Employers

- Economics Professor at California State University Los Angeles
- Research Fellow at Stanford University's Hoover Institution 1968 to 1973

Bibliography

- Western Technology and Soviet Economic Development: 1917–1930 (<https://archive.org/details/Sutton--Western-Technology-1917-1930>) (1968)
- Western Technology and Soviet Economic Development: 1930–1945 (<https://archive.org/details/Sutton--Western-Technology-1930-1945>) (1971)
- Western Technology and Soviet Economic Development: 1945–1965 (<https://archive.org/details/Sutton--Western-Technology-1945-1965>) (1973)
- National Suicide: Military Aid to the Soviet Union (1973)
- What Is Libertarianism? (1973)
- Wall Street and the Bolshevik Revolution (1974, 1999) (Online version (http://reformed-theology.org/html/books/bolshevik_revolution/index.html)) (Online Russian version (<http://velesova-sloboda.vho.org/geo/revolution.html>))
- Wall Street and the Rise of Hitler (1976, 1999) (Online version (http://reformed-theology.org/html/books/wall_street/index.html))
- Wall Street and FDR (1976, 1999) (Online version (<http://www.reformation.org/wall-st-fdr.html>))
- The War on Gold: How to Profit from the Gold Crisis (1977)
- Energy: The Created Crisis (1979)
- The Diamond Connection: A manual for investors (1979)
- Trilaterals Over Washington – Volume I (1979; with Patrick M. Wood)
- Trilaterals Over Washington – Volume II (1980; with Patrick M. Wood)
- Gold vs Paper: A cartoon history of inflation (1981)
- Investing in Platinum Metals (1982)
- Technological Treason: A catalog of U.S. firms with Soviet contracts, 1917–1982 (1982)
- America's Secret Establishment: An Introduction to the Order of Skull & Bones (<https://archive.org/details/AmericasSecretEstablishmentOrderOfSkullbones>) (1983, 1986, 2002)
- How the Order Creates War and Revolution (1985) (Online Russian version (<http://velesova-sloboda.vho.org/geo/order.html>))
- How the Order Controls Education (1985)
- The Best Enemy Money Can Buy (1986) (Online version (http://reformed-theology.org/html/books/best_enemy/index.html))
- The Two Faces of George Bush (1988)
- The Federal Reserve Conspiracy (1995) (Online Russian version (as Vlast' dollara) (<http://velesova-sloboda.vho.org/geo/conspiracy.html>))
- Trilaterals Over America (1995) (Online Russian version (<http://velesova-sloboda.vho.org/geo/trilaterals.html>))
- Cold Fusion: Secret Energy Revolution (1997)
- Gold For Survival (1999)

See also

- Arms industry
- Federal Reserve
- Militarism
- Military funding of science
- Military–industrial–media complex
- Military Keynesianism

- Permanent war economy
- Politico-media complex
- Power elite
- Prison–industrial complex
- The Power Elite by C. Wright Mills

References

1. Millegan (ed.), Kris (2004). Fleshing Out Skull and Bones. Walterville, OR: Trine Day. p. 89. ISBN 0-9752906-0-6.
2. Wall Street and the Rise of Hitler, Chapter 12
3. "The Best Enemies Money Can Buy" (video). Interview with Prof. Antony C. Sutton. 1980. Retrieved 2016-08-05.
4. http://www.reformed-theology.org/html/books/best_enemy/appendix_b.htm
5. Wall Street and the Bolshevik Revolution, Chapter XI
6. Wall Street and the Rise of Hitler, Chapter 8
7. Wall Street and FDR, Chapter 12.
8. "Charlotte Iserbyt: Societies Secrets". 00:50–10:00.

External links

- Anthony Sutton's official website (<http://www.antonymsutton.com/>)
- 1999 e-mail interview with Sutton (<http://www.antonymsutton.com/suttoninterview.html>)
- The Life And Work Of Antony C. Sutton (<http://www.digitaljournal.com/article/326318>)

Retrieved from "https://en.wikipedia.org/w/index.php?title=Antony_C._Sutton&oldid=757329132"

Categories: English political scientists | English economists | English engineers | English political writers | English emigrants to the United States | British investigative journalists | Monetary reformers | Hoover Institution people | California State University, Los Angeles faculty | British classical liberals | University of California, Los Angeles alumni | Alumni of the University of Southampton | Alumni of the University of London | 1925 births | 2002 deaths | Skull and Bones Society | American anti-communists | 20th-century English historians

-
- This page was last modified on 30 December 2016, at 02:07.
 - Text is available under the Creative Commons Attribution-ShareAlike License; additional terms may apply. By using this site, you agree to the Terms of Use and Privacy Policy. Wikipedia® is a registered trademark of the Wikimedia Foundation, Inc., a non-profit organization.