VI. DISCUSSION: Answer the following questions using complete sentences. – 3 points each incorrect answer

1. What two landforms gave special protection to Egypt?
How did they provide protection?

Ancient Egypt was well protected by the desert that surrounded it and the cataracts in the Nile River. Because of its heat and lack of water, the desert discouraged invaders from coming over land. The cataracts made it nearly impossible for invaders to use the Nile River as a means of attack.

2. Describe each of the three Egyptian seasons.

During the flooding season, the people of Egypt worked on their buildings while they waited for the water to go down. They often built ditches to trap some of the floodwaters inland for use in irrigation. The planting season came next. The Egyptians planted their crops in the fertile soil left by the floodwaters. Finally came the harvest season when the crops were gathered for another year.
